THE SIMPLE MAIDEN.

There was once a simple maiden and her simple name was Dottie. She had a simple twinkle in her eyes.

There was a simple dimple in her simple chin that naughty little maids who had no dimples saw with sighs. The things she said were simple. And the things she did were simple. A very simple girl was she. But the simplest maid that ever simply sighed may still be clever. In her beautiful sim-pli-ci-tee.

There came a gallant hero with a manner that was splendid. The other girls regarded him with awe. They sought him, but none caught him, and their hoping soon was ended.

For Dottie was the only girl he saw. He flirted with coy Dottie. And he boasted that sweet Dottie was ready to accept him any day. But the simplest maid that ever simply sighed may still be clever. In a simple, un-ex-pect-ed way.

The hero soon grew weary of the maiden and her sighs. On other ladies he bestowed his smiles.

But naughty little Dottie did no vain or foolish crying. She had letters from him, packed in handy piles. To Dottie he had written. Things he never should have written.

And she made him pay her well to set him free. Oh, the simplest maid that ever simply sighed may still be clever. In her beautiful sim-pli-ci-tee. —Chicago Record-Herald.

IN LOVING MEMORY OF THE LATE MRS. MORENO.

In loving memory of an earnest co-worker, the Pensacola Library Association doors will be closed during the funeral services of the late Mrs. Scarritt Moreno.

The Library will not open until five thirty o'clock this afternoon.

LEAVES FOR NEWPORT, R. I.

Mrs. Oscar Hammer, who has been visiting her sisters, the Misses Ward, on Seville square, leaves today for Newport, R. I., where she goes to join her husband, Capt. Hammer, of the government steamer Lieut. W. H. Smith.

MRS. LLOYD HAHN HERE ON A VISIT.

Mrs. Lloyd Hahn, formerly of Pensacola but now of Kansas City, where Mr. Hahn is in business, is here for a few days the guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Levey on East Hill. Mrs. Hahn is being warmly greeted by her many friends.

MR. AND MRS. H. C. PALMER HAVE RETURNED.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Palmer, whose wedding was an interesting July event, and who enjoyed a delightful wedding trip through the east and to Mr. Palmer's home city, New York, have returned, and are at home to their friends at No. 23 Gregory street. They are with Mrs. H. M. Jernigan for the present.

IS THE GUEST OF MRS. L. L. PARKER.

Miss Osaie Story, of Millan, Ga., is in the city for a few weeks' visit. She is the guest of her sister, Mrs. L. L. Parker, and many pleasant affairs are being planned in her honor.

THE TANAGRA TUNIC.

Among the new tunics that have been devised in the midsummer is one that is directly copied from the Tanagra figurines. These little statuettes have given many ideas to the dress-makers this season, since the classic styles have been so much in fashion.

GAVE BAY PARTY LAST NIGHT.

Mr. and Mrs. Gifford Garret gave a pleasant bay party last night, in honor of a jolly party of their friends. The beauties of the bay on a mid-summer night were enjoyed, and the island proved the destination of the party. Both proved royal entertainers, the evening passing in an extremely pleasant manner.

MR. AND MRS. V. F. BALKCOM IN GEORGIA.

Mr. and Mrs. V. F. Balkcom and their charming children are in Georgia, where they are visiting at various points with relatives and friends. They will return to the city sometime next week.

LITTLE MARGARET FREIDMAN IS ILL.

Little Margaret, the bright young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Freidman, is ill with typhoid fever, to the regret of her many friends and admirers. Mr. Freidman is in New York on his annual business trip.

A PLEA FOR THE YOUNG WIFE.

Perhaps there is no more pathetic figure in fiction than that of Dora, the wife of David Copperfield. We find her in the beginning of her romance an irresponsible, affectionate little creature, loving Jip, her dog, and petting him before her lover's eyes to David's great discomfort. Later we see her in her home, an adored wife, but an incompetent one. And, finally, we see her dying and David weeping over the loss of his child wife.

Yet if Dora had not died what would have happened? The chances are that David would have tired of her, and she would have been a failure. He had loved her because of her beauty, her coaxing ways, her curls, her blue ribbons. After marriage, however, he demanded that she at once become a sober and competent housewife. When she could not live up to this ideal he hid his disappointment as best he could.

David was an exceptional man, with infinite love and compassion, but many men do not have patience. They expect the light hearted girls they marry to be transformed at once into expert managers. Yet a girl must serve her apprenticeship at wifehood, and the man who realizes this and does not too soon condemn her will find greater happiness than he who demands too much in the beginning.

I know of a case in which the husband was ten years older than his butterfly wife. When he wooed her he knew that she had never assumed any responsibility. He knew, too, that she was a little tact and a realization of the value of her buoyant qualities would have helped her much future unhappiness. He might have helped her grow; instead he subdued her bright spirit, until from very weariness she became irritable and obstinate.

It ended, as might have been expected in a divorce. She chafed at what she called his tyranny, and he flung back at her the fact of her incompetence.

A young husband does not realize how much he has to do in the making of domestic happiness. His child wife comes to him with her heart full of love and dreams and ideas. She wants to do the things which will make him happy. The trouble lies in the fact that she does not know how to make her dreams real, so she stumbles along blindly, often without a helping hand; and youth goes from her, and brightness, and she becomes a little hard, a little bitter and then in the end a failure.

A certain little woman has told me of her struggle during the first year of her married life.

"I was just twenty when I married. My lover had adored me; he had told me that I was a saint, a goddess on a pedestal. He never spoke to me of practical things or seemed to want to have me discuss them. The last years of my single life had been passed at a fashionable boarding school. He was proud of the finished manners, the social experience that I had acquired. He spoke only of these things, and I gained an idea that he required nothing else.

"After marriage it seemed to me that everything came upon me in a perfect avalanche. I found that my husband had tastes and requirements of which I had known nothing. He was fastidious at table and his bachelor days, which had been passed for several years at the club, had taught him to be exacting in service. We were not rich and I could not hire expensive servants. I had to do all my own planning and to keep strict supervision over my household affairs. This I was not prepared to do, and my husband instead of suggesting and encouraging and teaching me, simply complained and condemned until I was worn out. Fortunately I had a good deal of pride. I set myself to learn the things that had to be learned, and in the end I became what he wanted, a perfect housekeeper. Yet he lost what he will never regain—my tender regard, my confidence in his chivalrous protection. When we first married he was my lover and my knight. Today he is my partner in a domestic contract. We do not clash because I keep things running smoothly. He respects me, and in many ways I admire him, but the girl that was in me is dead; he killed a part of me in those first days of our wedded life."

Men should think of this when they marry child wives. To hold love is a great thing, and love can be held, wherever sympathy and understanding are aroused as a means to an end, rather than complaint and condemnation.

AT THE DRIVING CLUB.

The Piedmont Driving club continues to serve each Saturday and Sunday evening delicious table d'hôte dinners, and on Saturday a large number of club members and their friends dined at the club.

Among those dining there Saturday evening were Mr. F. P. Gamble, who entertained a party of six in honor of Mr. and Mrs. James Swift, of Elberton.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Moore had as their guests at dinner Mr. and Mrs. Clarke Howell, Mr. and Mrs. Shepard

Bryan, Mr. and Mrs. Burrell, of Sparta, and Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Ome. Others dining at the club Saturday evening were Mr. Charles E. Scipio, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Adger Smythe, Mr. Byron Bower and others.

Sunday evening among those who dined at the club were Miss Lillian Logan and her guest, Miss Lucy Huguenin, of Charleston. Miss Constance Knowles, Mr. Robert Woodruff, Mr. Dennis, Mr. Jesse Draper, Mr. Louis Gregg, Mr. Arthur Lane, Mr. Hugh Scott, Dugan McLeskey, Mr. Lynn Werner, Mr. Charlie Ryan and others.—Atlanta Georgian.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Dr. L. C. Phillips, who has been visiting friends in Indiana and Illinois, is expected home today.

LINGERIE CUSHIONS.

The pillow cushion in tapestry or fine lawn and embroidery is proving popular. Some of the lawn designs are exquisite, embroidered, by hand, and inset with lace motifs, while the tapestry and brocade designs are simply made with a plain edging in cord in the color which predominates in the material.

Broderie anglaise adorns some of the pillow shaped cushions, with flat edgings of lace as a finish. When used in the bedroom cushions of this kind are accompanied by handkerchief sachets, nightdress cases, glove cases, etc., made to match.

TO PROTECT STOCKINGS.

The popularity of thin stockings, which include lace and silk, has caused individuals and firms to invent all kinds of guards to make these thin stockings wearable. The woman who indulges in them has added two or three kinds of harness to one pair of stockings, but she makes by it in the end, for her stockings last longer and they do not show the large darns, which are not attractive with slippers and low pumps.

The first protection is a round chambray pad, which is attached to the end of each corset elastic and goes between the top of the stocking and the leg coming against the chambray instead of the metal, and, therefore, one does not have those unsightly Jacob's ladders which ruin the best stockings ever made.

Another safety device is a toe guard of knitted silk. This comes in white only and it can be worn under any color of stockings without showing because of its shortness. The chambray pad and the toe guard are the two best stockings ever made. Another device for protecting the whole garter top of this stocking is a two-inch band of silk or lisle after it is put on and serves as a bulwark against the pull of the elastic.

PLAN LABOR DAY PICNIC

THE BUSINESS WOMAN'S CLUB IS ARRANGING FOR A CELEBRATION ON THAT DAY AT PALMETTO BEACH.

The Business Woman's club has in preparation a grand Labor Day picnic at Palmetto Beach, and arrangements are being made for a pleasant day for those attending. Music throughout the day will be furnished by Barrios' orchestra.

The baby show, which will be for babies from the ages of one to three years, will appeal to all, especially to mothers. A prize will be given the prettiest baby.

For the interest of those dancing, a prize dance will be held, also a free voting contest and prize for the most popular lady.

Dainty refreshments will be served during the entire day. The anticipation of every happy privilege to the children is sufficient invitation to every one.

KEEP THE SKIN CLEAR

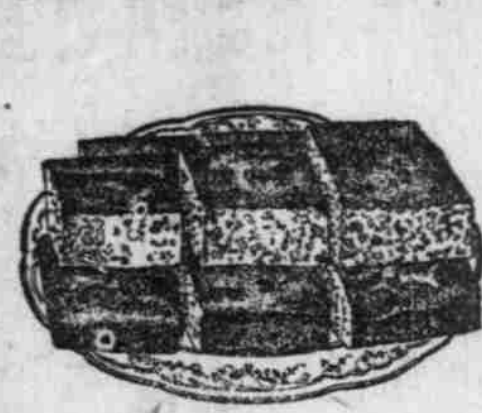

With CUTICURA Soap and Ointment

No other emollients do so much for pimples, blackheads, red, rough and oily skin, itching, scaly scalps, dry, thin and falling hair, chapped hands and shapeless nails. They do even more for skintortured and disfigured infants.

Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a liberal sample of each, with 22-page booklet on the care and treatment of skin and hair, will be sent post-free, on application to "Cuticura," Dept. L, Boston.

Corn Bread

An easily digested, appetizing and nourishing breakfast dish is well-made corn bread. Like many a dish it is vastly improved by using Borden's Evaporated Milk as per the following:

RECIPE

Mix one cup white corn meal, one cup flour, a large pinch of salt and one heaping tablespoonful baking powder, and sift thoroughly. Dilute four tablespoonfuls Borden's Evaporated Milk with three-fourths cup water, generous measure; beat two eggs light and add the milk to them, together with one heaping tablespoonful butter, melted. Stir well, pour into a greased pan, and bake in a moderately hot oven thirty minutes.

GULF TO LAKES SCOUT TRIP IS BRIGHT SUBJECT

MANY LETTERS BEING RECEIVED FROM ALL ALONG PROPOSED ROUTE—EDITOR DOTY OF ANDALUSIA IS ENTHUSIASTIC.

The Pensacola to Chicago scout trip is arousing interest all along the line. As an evidence of this the following letter received by The Journal from Editor Doty of the Andalusia Star is self-explanatory:

Doty Is Enthusiastic. You can count on the Andalusia Star going the limit for you and your high way, and I think Covington county people generally feel the same way about it.

Your route to Montgomery must of necessity pass over the same highway we have selected through Escambia, Covington, Coffee and a part of Pike, and we will perform between Pensacola and Montgomery, other than to arouse enthusiasm, for we have secured pledges for the identical road that you need.

If possible we are going to send cars to Brewton to meet you and if possible we are going to carry you to the county seat of the next county. In other words we are going to try to do the right thing by you. In our zeal to have good roads to show our visitors on the 26th inst. we set about two weeks ago and worked them and it has rained hard every day since. Today the roads are almost impassable, but with a few days' sunshine the going will be better.

For seven or eight years I've knocked around this section with a motor car and if there's any information that I can give you, you'd be glad to impart it. Don't hesitate to call on me for anything. Yours in the cause, EDWARD DOTY.

In the last issue of his paper Editor Doty says:

"It is noted that Andalusia is on the proposed highway between Pensacola and Chicago. The Pensacola Journal states that the scout car will leave the city September 1st. Andalusia should get in touch with the Pensacola Chamber of Commerce and leave nothing undone to bring the highway through this section. Through Escambia, Covington and Pike counties this road should travel the same route as the national highway. It would be easier and better for these counties. The Star suggests a motor car escort from the time the scout car enters Covington county until it leaves at the edge of Coffee county. There is no doubt that Escambia and Coffee counties will do their part. The road overseers between Sanford and Opp should get busy immediately."

Letters are also being received from Montgomery, Birmingham, Nashville, Louisville, Indianapolis, Chicago and other points which the Gulf-to-the-Lakes route will touch. These letters all indicate a general interest in the project that means so much to the South and to the people who want direct automobile connection with the Gulf coast.

CHIEF MACHINIST HIGGINS PRAISED

The Army and Navy Register recently said:

"The engineering trophy for the last competitive period, which was won by the North Carolina, will be presented to that vessel early in the coming week in the presence of the vessels of the Atlantic fleet assembled off Provincetown, Mass. Rear Admiral Nathan C. Twining, chief of the bureau of ordnance; Rear Admiral Hutch I. Cone, chief of the bureau of steam engineering; Lieut. Commander Leigh C. Palmer, director of target practice and engineering competitions; and Lieut. Commander Edward C. Kalbfus, assistant director, will attend the presentation ceremonies."

The presentation will probably be made by Rear Admiral Twining. Captain Clifford J. Bouch, who was in command of the North Carolina during the last competitive period, has reported the following officers, who, by their continued efficient work, did most to bring about the most excellent work attained in engineering:

Chief Machinist Louis C. Higgins is now visiting his sister, Miss Corneil Higgins, at Warrington, who is postmistress there.

INSURANCE MAN UNDER ARREST

Charged with violating the state insurance laws of Florida, Edward J. Knipper, a prominent insurance man of this city, was arrested yesterday by Deputy Sheriff C. W. Johnson. Mr. Knipper immediately made bond for his appearance in court at the proper time and was released.

The arrest for Mr. Knipper's arrest was obtained by the representative of another insurance company in the city, and charges the defendant with "unlawfully soliciting and writing insurance without obtaining a certificate from the state treasurer under the direction of the board of insurance commissioners of the state of Florida," and names one Amanda Williams as the person to whom he sold a policy.

Mr. Knipper, when seen last night by a Journal representative, said the charges would not be sustained and exhibited letters from state officials "The Home Protective Association is incorporated under the laws of Pennsylvania. It is a benevolent order and under the Florida statutes requires no certificate of authority from the state," he said.
